A NOTABLE DINNER PARTY

Storm Puts Quietness on Out of Door Functions, but All is Gayety Indoors.

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.] NEWPORT, R. I., Saturday.—Although with luncheon and dinner, it was very gay indoors this afternoon and evening, the cold northeast storm put a quietus on everything in the open. Some yachting enthusiasts drove to the Casino to learn of the race, but, hearing the announcement that the event was off, they hurried home to the Casino and invited a large and brilliant dinner company, as usual before Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Vanderbilt were among the entertainers, and their affair was notable as being the occasion of the first large gathering at their country place, at Sandy Point. It was, therefore, in the nature of a housewarming.

Mrs. Edward J. Berwind entertained several guests at her villa, in Bellevue avenue. The occasion was enlivened by music by Mullaly's orchestra.

MISS LUDIE ENTERTAINS.

Mrs. Philip Lydig had a large dinner company at her cottage, in Catherine street, the tables being spread on the piazza. The Hungarian band played. Mrs. Vanderbilt entertained at the Breakers, and Mrs. Winthrop Chandler and Miss Mabel Norman also had dinner companies.

A novel dinner, with sunflower effects, was given by Mr. and Mrs. William Redmond at the Glendale Club. Hundreds of sunflowers were artistically arranged in a very pretty decoration, and the less, which were served in sunflowers, were so cleverly colored that they looked exactly like the centres of the big blossoms.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Redmond included Mr. and Mrs. Elissa Dyer, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Casimir de Rham, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Saff, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Coster, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart Barney, Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. E. Robinson, Dr. and Mrs. Alexander S. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis C. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Leroy Emmett, Mrs. J. De Forest Danielson, Miss Natalie Schobel, Miss Emily Stewart Taylor, Miss Lydia Redmond, Miss Louise Scott, Miss Edith Clapp, Miss Adelaide Spofford and Miss Julia Berwind.

Mr. and Mrs. Elissa Dyer, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Andrews gave children's parties this afternoon.

The Newport Country Club held its annual meeting to-day, and elected Mr. James Stillman president and Mr. Theodore C. Blake treasurer. The matter of the future of the club property, which includes the golf links, will be a subject of discussion at a future meeting.

The Spouting Rock Beach Association also held its annual meeting this morning. Mr. Lippard Stewart, Mr. William W. Sherman and Mr. Ogden Mills were elected members of the Board of Governors for the coming year. The affair of the association is in a flourishing condition.

There was a meeting this morning, at the residence of Senator George P. Johnson, in the interest of the George Junior Republic. There was a large attendance of managers.

Mr. Lippard Stewart will leave to-morrow to spend a month hunting and fishing in Canada.

NEW ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE IN GERMANY.

The German Reichstag has voted $70,000 for a new track, to be laid upon the Berlin-Zossen line, for immediate experiments with electric trains. This is the outcome of recent experiments, during which a train, for a brief period, attained a speed of nearly a hundred miles an hour.

Giving Away a Million

Mere Play to S. B. Roath

Wealthy Norwich Resident Asks New England Relatives to Help Him Disburse Large Fortune Made in the West.

BUY EDIBLES ONLY, ADVICE TO YOUNG MEN

[SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.] NORWICH, Conn., Saturday.—In Stephen B. Roath, who came out of the West and started his poor relatives here by distributing money like a million dollars among them, Norwich has found a second David Harum. It is not only in the kindness of his heart, masked by a somewhat gruff nature and a decided proclivity to get the better end of a bargain always, that "Uncle Steve," as the townspeople call him, resembles the man of fiction.

Real David Harum.

His conversation, his actions, his looks and even the principles followed by him from a boyhood of poverty are those of David Harum to an exactness that almost makes one who is fortunate enough to talk with this remarkable old gentleman, if there is any difference it is that Mr. Roath, in his latter days, is even more generous than was his prototype.

Mr. Roath, after a life in which his acquaintances gave him a reputation for cleverness and stinginess, has suddenly changed them all to gasp with astonishment at his prodigal liberality, and nothing provokes him more than to have those he has remembered try to thank him.

Always a man of action, Mr. Roath does not believe in wasting time needlessly, and if young men would follow his example in that particular, he says, they would get ahead more rapidly. True to his principles, Mr. Roath did not waste his relatives' money. They knew nothing about it until the wealth, far beyond their fondest dreams, was literally dumped at their doors.

"I got it all fixed," Mr. Roath chuckled as he said it, and his eyes twinkled with delight, and then I sprung it on them. Now I'll just wait around and see what they do with it. Yes, I gave it without a single reservation. They can throw it away if they want to. I'll just wait and see."

Relatives Not Spendthrifts.

But the relatives of this eccentric old bachelor will not be likely to throw away the money. They are not of the prodigal kind, and even if they are poor none of them has ever had to ask odds of any one. All are industrious and frugal and no family in Connecticut is held in greater respect.

If they are still somewhat dazed who can blame them? To be raised from dependence on daily toil to affluence, and without a moment's warning, is a thing that seldom happens outside the covers of fairy tales. Ask the fortunate persons what they are going to do with their money and they will tell you they do not know. It is needless to say, however, that they will not squander it.

"Uncle Steve's" greatest disappointment is that his great generosity has become public property. He declares no one but his relatives would know anything about it but for Stephen B. Roath, a bachelor who has lived here for nearly half a century, who has acted as a fair godfather, distributing the aged man's bounty and then telling about it. Even now Mr. Roath tries to belittle his generosity by declaring he has not given away quite so much as the public believes. But for all that, it is stated as a fact that the amount was hardly a cent less, and what adds interest in the fact that "Uncle Steve" has something like a million left.

All Made in Chicago.

It was in Chicago, where he went in 1855, that Mr. Roath made his fortune. He was livestock agent for the Illinois Central Railroad for years there, and enjoyed and benefited by the friendship of the famous Marshall Field, L. J. Leiter, Nelson Morris, the late Philip Palmer and the late Philip Armour.

Always a persistent money getter, Mr. Roath made it a rule never to be broken, that the money he saved must earn more money. And so it was that from the humblest beginning he grew to be a man of millions.

The secret of his success, interspersed with much sound advice, and his reasons for giving away a large slice of his fortune was told in a most interesting manner by Mr. Roath, as he sat in an easy chair on the porch of the comfortable cottage at No. 71 McKinley avenue. This is the home of Mrs. Matilda Randall, a widow, who is Mr. Roath's sister; her only child, Miss Matilda Randall, and Mrs. Henry L. Parker, another sister, who has five children. Mr. Roath has spent the summer there for many years, and the front porch is a favorite place with him.

Long an Invalid.

As he sits there, Mr. Roath, with his strong, smooth shaven face and kindly eye, is a study. He has been a sufferer from rheumatism for years, and a cane is his constant companion, but he wears his seventy-four years lightly, even if his hair is snow white. The word character is written all over his face, and he is a character. His dress is plain to severity, and with his black tie, black suit, neat teeth and black slouch hat, he looks not unlike a Quaker.

"How did I invest my money? Let me give you one piece of advice, young man—don't invest in anything you can't eat. People must eat always, but in hard times

GLOBE GIRLER DENIES CHARGES

Frederick Declares He is Ready to Face Any Accusation, but Cannot Find Warrant.

TELLS OF HIS WORLD TOUR

Shows Passport to Prove His Assertion and Says He Has Not Wrongfully Sold Typewriters.

Henry Frederick, who, it was said, recently made a trip around the world in fifty-four days, and reached this city to find his office at No. 32 Park row, closed and under the charge of his magazine, the Household Journal, asserted yesterday that he had devoted the day to hunting for the warrant which was alleged to have been issued for his arrest, and had not succeeded in finding any one who was anxious to serve it upon him.

"I was in Atlantic City," said Mr. Frederick at the Hotel Cadillac last evening, "when I read that the federal authorities in this city wanted me. I was ill after my rush around the globe and distressed over the condition in which I found my business affairs, and went to Atlantic City to recuperate. Let me first settle all question as to whether I made the trip or not."

Mr. Frederick then produced his passport, on the back of which was the visa of a Consul or other government official in each country through which he passed. The document stated that he had been in Mr. Frederick was in London, Moscow, St. Petersburg, Irkutsk, Dally, China and Yokohama and when he arrived at Vancouver.

He returned from Atlantic City prepared to face the music," said Mr. Frederick. "I have done nothing to merit a charge of fraud, and I am ready to meet my accusers. I went to the Federal Building to-day and asked if I were wanted. I was told that an inspector named Brown was the only one who knew anything about the case and that he was out of town, made an appointment to meet him Monday morning."

"I rang up the office of McKillop, Walker & Co., attorneys for the typewriter concern, who were serving me with a complaint against me, but there was no one there who wanted to see me."

It is true that as president of the Household Journal Company I made contracts for twenty-five typewriters from the typewriter company, and I was paid for with cash and an order for a few typewriters in all and left the others in my office when I started around the world.

"During my absence I received no telegrams or letters, and I lost two days' time in waiting for the first response in answer to a telegram to my office."

When I reached this city I was attacked by a severe cold, and I was unable to do any business, and I had accused me of disposing of typewriters with fraudulent intent. I deny that I have defrauded any one.

"It is true that my name is Henry Frederick Schwarze. I use the first part of my name as a literary nom de plume."

"My astrology business is a side issue to my journalism. I had four magazines at one time in Philadelphia. They were not suppressed by the Post Office authorities. They were merely refused admission to the mails as second class matter on the ground that my distribution was largely due to problem columns."

My tour around the world was part of my literary work, and I was not in any way connected with the typewriter company. The fact that I left my office in New York and did not return until I started on my trip and that I am here to face any charges that may be made against me."

Was First Mail Agent.

"I was the first mail agent that ever ran on the old Norwich and Worcester Railroad," Uncle Steve said with some pride. "That was in 1848. From 1852 to 1858 thirty-five families left Norwich for Chicago. I went there in 1855 with a small working capital and with a valuable experience I had gained from my first employer, who was the soul of honesty and sharp as a steel trap."

COULD COOK But Couldn't Eat.

A man who has seen thirty years sailing as cook on the "Inland Seas," as the Great Lakes are called, has learned a thing or two about food, as the following story shows:

"I am a cook on the Great Lakes, and have for five years suffered more than pen or tongue could tell from stomach trouble, and have taken medicines enough to float the boat I sail in, and yet without any relief from my pain."

"There were long stretches of time when I could not even keep milk or wine or the lightest kind of food on my stomach. I had lost all my weight, and I was 105 pounds less than two years ago. I saw so much in the newspapers about your food Grape-Nuts that one day I decided to try it, although without the least hope of getting any relief from my pain."

"So I bought a package in Cleveland and made the trial, and my stomach was so cranky I was afraid to try more than one teaspoonful with a little milk. And to my surprise it did me good. I ate it without any bad feelings, and at the end of an hour I knew it had digested and gone to the right spot; so I tried two spoonfuls more, with the same result. And now I am strong and healthy again."

"I have lived almost entirely on Grape-Nuts, where before I simply lived on medicines which consisted principally of opiates that relieved me for a time but shattered my nerves and weakened my system."

"Soon after I began Grape-Nuts I gave up all medicines. Now my nerves are back in their proper shape and my stomach is so strong that I can eat almost any kind of food without any suffering whatever."

"It may interest you to know that your food is very high in cases of seasickness, for in fact it is a most perfect food. I have seen many cases of very rough water. I have given Grape-Nuts to people on my boat who were seasick, when the sight of even coffee would be unbearable; but a few teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and they were all right. I would now be dependent on my relatives for support. The fellows on the boat make fun of me when they see me coming along with my little white package, but I am sure under the circumstances I can afford to laugh with them."
